Format: Light novel | Number of chapters: First three chapters

Title: Le Magecraft de Takao

Genre: Fantasy, Ecchi, Shounen, Nichijou

Topic: Japanese Pop Culture

Objective: I want to portray the Japanese pop culture through the stereotypical characters seen in many pop culture media: manga, anime, light novels, etc. that are ever-increasingly gaining popularity among the Japanese youth generation. I use the fantasy factors in my light novel to shed light on how the youth generation has their own ambitions to become stronger and more able to conquer challenges and hardships may lie ahead. I also incorporate common morals in the novel to convey the various beautiful Japanese qualities, such as: friendship, courage, intelligence and resilience, and that Japanese people have good moral conscience to do the right thing. Not only do Japanese youths possess good moral compass, but also a yearning for personal happiness and love – portrayed through the ecchi factors and how the characters behave in such situations in regards to each of the stereotypes.

CHAPTER 1: PILOT

JAPAN, 2068.

The winds make its way through the magically-warded city of Tokyo, painting the sky pink with gliding cherry blossom petals. The petals seem to be greeting the residents of this city of magecraft by riding the tailwind of levitating and moving motions
